Course of the one-access-approach

This course, held by Prof. Klaus Matschke (Chief of Cardiac Surgery Department) and cardiac surgeons and anesthesiologists from the Dresden Team, aims to provide participants with theoretical and practical knowledge of Minimally Invasive Cardiac LATeral Surgery (MICLAT S) under direct vision (one access approach) through frontal teaching and observation of interventions performed in the operating room. The team shows all possible therapeutic options for the aortic valve and possible extensions described as the One Access Concept. This tailor made treatment is adapted to every individual patient depending on patient's anatomy, physiognomy and surgical risk. As well this course is focused on implantation techniques, surgical approaches, product features, patient indication/ selection, echocardiographic evaluation, patient/ clinical benefits, and available clinical data.

To offer a more in-depth experience, the number of participants is limited to about 4 attendees.

Program Director: Prof. Dr. med. U. Kappert
